Afternoon Tea was introduced in England by Anna, the seventh Duchess of Bedford, in the year 1840.

At the time it was usual for people to take only two main meals a day, breakfast and at around eight o'clock dinner. The solution was a pot of tea and a light snack with friends at four o'clock.

Other social hostesses quickly picked up on the idea and before long all of fashionable society was sipping tea and nibbling sandwiches in the middle of the afternoon.
